

James P. Agalloco Joins Moda Board of Advisors

Fort Washington, PA, July 31, 2006 – Moda Technology Partners (Moda) today announced that James P. Agalloco is joining the Moda Board of Advisors. Mr. Agalloco is the President of Agalloco & Associates (A&A) and an internationally recognized expert on pharmaceutical manufacturing. Moda has developed Moda-EM (TM), a mobile computing solution for the collection, management and reporting of environmental monitoring information by pharmaceutical manufacturers.

“I welcome the opportunity to help the evolution and development of environmental monitoring software solutions that add value to the end user,” remarked Agalloco. “The ability to interpret environmental monitoring results rapidly and in conjunction with other process information is an essential part of a well managed sterile production facility.”

“The Moda Board of Advisors provides insight into the regulatory, operational and technological issues that our clients are facing,” said David Lipson, CEO of Moda. “Jim brings over 30 years of experience to this group and we are confident that his involvement will enhance our ability to effectively address the needs of the industry.”

About Moda Technology Partners

Moda Technology Partners is a commercial software company whose primary focus is addressing the growing need for effective automation and efficient regulatory compliance within pharmaceutical manufacturing. Moda's software leverage mobile computing technology to help pharmaceutical clients increase operational efficiency, improve quality and reduce manufacturing costs. Additional information is available at www.modatp.com.